Mrs. Oscar Turner in Marble.
A Washington, (D. C.) letter says of Mrs. Oscar Turner, wife of the late Oscar Turner, member of congress from this district for many years, and who is well-known here:

"And while on things artistic, it is rather an interesting fact that one of the most exquisite pieces of sculpture in the Corcoran Gallery here, the marble bust of Bacchante, done by an American artist, has for its original model one of the most prominent southern women, long distinguished in social Washington, who spends a large part of every season at the New Willard, Bacchante, smiling, dimpling bewitching, with perfect modeling of form and feature, was Mrs. Oscar Turner at 15, when as pretty Eugenia Gardner, of Tennessee, the sculptor prevailed upon her parents to allow her to sit for him. Her inspiration made the work the artist's masterpiece. Mrs. Turner, now of Louisville, has lived in official life in Washington under seven presidents, enjoying in the course of her brilliant career the unique distinction of being the daughter, the wife, the mother of a congressman—all three. Mrs. Turner is a charter member of the exclusive 'Washington club,' the first of the women's clubs to be instituted, admission to which is the catchet of prestige."
